Wesley Girls' High School Old Girls' Association Applauds President's Nominee for Chief Justice

Wesley Girls' High School, the oldest all girls secondary school in Ghana has recorded another feat with the President's nomination of yet another past student of the school as Chief Justice of the Republic of Ghana.

Her Ladyship Justice Gertrude Araba Esaaba Torkonoo, will follow in the footsteps of two past students of WGHS, who occupied the eminent position before her: Her Ladyship Justice (Rtd.) Georgina Wood (Ghana's first female CJ) and Her Ladyship Justice (Rtd.) Sophia Akuffo.

The WGHS Old Girls' Association and the entire staff and students of the school, take this opportunity to congratulate Her Ladyship for this great achievement. Having been enrolled in the school as Gertrude Sackey in 1973 and graduating in 1978, the nominated CJ will bring to the position, the rich tradition of academic excellence that WGHS is famous for.

Her nomination is an addition to the long list of accomplishments registered by products of the school in several fields (locally and internationally) - a firm testament to the high educational standards associated with Wesley Girls' since its establishment 186 years ago.

No doubt, Her Ladyship's eventual confirmation will inspire current and past students of the school to strive for greater heights in their studies and in their chosen fields of endeavour.

Whilst we look forward to her appointment, the Old Girls' Association, staff and students of WGHS are confident that with the help of God Almighty, the nominee, together with other products of this great institution of learning, will continue in humility to serve humanity in diverse positions.

Effie Simpson
National President
